

Tackling loneliness - it's everybody's business

"As the health, social and economic case for a major intervention to tackle loneliness builds we must also recognize that change doesn't happen on its own. We need to make sure that loneliness mobilises us all – it becomes everyone's business".

Marcus Rand
Director of the Campaign to End Loneliness

Join us in helping reconnect those older people hidden behind closed doors – enabling the invisible to become visible again.

Showcases

National guidance and ideas from the Campaign to end Loneliness on how to identify and engage with older people experiencing loneliness.

Faith groups and churches: what they are doing to respond to the issue locally

Private sector: how they are helping older people, their families and carers stay connected and independent at home for longer

Planning for action together

Try something different. Give it a go and next time tell us how you got on

Food

What can you do to help older people share meals and eat together?

Out and about
